

Having examined the types of Tovaria of L veill  at Edinburgh in 1971, 1978, and also in 1983 by courtesy of the curator of Royal Botanic Garden, Edinburgh, I have confirmed that Tovaria longistyla differs widely from T. Bodinieri in the characters of flowers, and the plant with long stamens and style described and illustrated as Disporum Bodinieri in Fl. Reip. Pop. Sin. 15 (1978) agrees with T. longistyla, but is not conspecific with T. Bodinieri. Disporum Cavaleriei based on the fruiting specimen collected from the same locality as that of T. longistyla seems probably to be Disporum longistylum.
